FileWiz allows the conversion of files into a wide variety of formats: HTML, CHM, text, image, audio, video, etc. Unlike most other similar programs, FileWiz can read and convert the W3C Rich Text Format (RTF) files that are a part of MS Word 2003/2007. FileWiz also provides a convenient interface for working with resources, including HTML, CSS, and image files. Before you begin using FileWiz, it is important to read its help file, which contains valuable information about the program. The FileWiz interface is divided into two frames: the left one contains menus for File operations, and the right one lists the converted files. You can run FileWiz directly from the FileWiz application as an executable file, or you can use a batch file to start the utility from within a batch-file environment. You can also run FileWiz from its own icon, which is shown on the desktop. FileWiz Tutorial:

---

- If you want to use FileWiz only for converting HTML files, install a HTML Editor to edit HTML files; use that editor to open and convert the HTML files.
- Use a batch file to start

the FileWiz utility. The startup batch file must be saved on your desktop or in a folder that you will access frequently. • When you start the utility using a batch file, specify the location of the converted HTML files, the path of the converted HTML files, and the location of the temporary folder. • When using FileWiz for converting plain text files, you can use a command line text editor such as EditPad Lite for Windows as follows: start FileWiz.exe /e /L

---

C:\temp\html
